SATURDAY NIGHT'S TRAGEDY. Robert Logan Committed to Jail for Shooting His Wife.

Susle Logan, a colored woman, living at 409 Franklin street, was shot and instantly killed the house and went to his brother in-law, Benjamin Laucaster, to whom he told what he had done. He then returned to the house and had done. He then returned to the house and was taken into custody, together with his brother Frank, who was at the house at the time. A coroner's inquest was held yesterday afternoon, and Logae was committed to jail. It was stated at the inquest that Robert and Frank returned home on Saturday night drunk and quarrelsome. Robert had asked Frank for some money, which the latter refused. Robert went upstairs where his wife was and Frank started to follow. The former drew a pistol causing the other to retreat. A shot was fired and a body was heard to fall on the floor. Then Robert ran down stairs and out of the house, exclaiming that he had shot Susic. He declared that it was unintentional. Logan was employed as a laborer in the Government Printing Office, and when soher was kind and industrious, but drink made him crazy. It is believed that he had no intention of shooting his wife, but that she lost her Hie while trying to provent his shooting Frank.

THE GOVERNMENT BEATEN.

Claimants to the Flats Allowed to File an Amended Answer.
In the Court in General Term to-day the aplication of John S. Marshall and others to file an amended and supplemental answer in the case of the United States against Morris and others (the Potomac flats case) was granted, the judgment in the court below being reversed.

The suit was brought by the United States in order to obtain a perfect title to the lands which are to be improved along the Potomac River. These people claim title under the last Lord Proprietary of Maryland, and also under Lord Fairfax. The United States claimed that they should not now be allowed to file this amended answer, on the ground that the time stipulated in the act of Congress for filing the original answer, has expired. that the time stipulated in the act of Congress for illing the original answer has expired.

The Court, however, was of the opinion that Congress intended that this case should be conducted in accordance with the usual proceedings of courts of equity where the Justice has discretion in such a matter.

The Government also objected that such rights as the applicants claimed were all merged in the title of the United States.

The Court said he thought that the spirit and intent of the act of Congress was to allow all persons claiming title to assert his claim, and it would therefore be better to allow the supplemental answer to be filed and have a hearing in the ordinary way upon its merits.

AGNES WATSON'S DEATH.

Frederick Barber Placed on Trial

Charged with Murder. Frederick Barber, colored, was placed on rial in the Crininal Court to-day charged with the murder of Agnes Watson on June 23 last by throwing her from a bridge in the canal, n Georgetown. The usual difficulty in secur-og a jury was experienced. The regular canel was soon exhausted, and fifty names vere drawn to supply vacancies.

The claim of the Government is that Barber The claim of the Government is that Barber was trying to break away from the woman, and that on the night of her death she had followed him for the purpose of repreaching him. He became angry, and in a fit of rage, threw her into the canal.

The defense offered by Dan. Cabill and A. W. Ferguson, his counsel, is that the drowning was purely accidental.

Why the Racing Ended.

It is said that the National Jockey Club deined to continue its successful fall meeting beyond the time originally fixed because it had learned that combinations were being formed among the horse-owners for the purpose of dividing the purses without regard to the merits of the horses. The bookmakers and the owners of the smaller stables were all anxious for a continuance, and the former offered aimost enough for the betting privileges to pay for the purses the club would have been compelled to put up. The larger stables, however, were anxious to retire their horses for the winter, and as only the smaller class of racing men would be left, it was feared that some combination sight be formed and the meeting degenerate into a disreputable affair.

A Man with a Nerve Frank Raymond, a well-dressed but "busted" follower of the races, was the first under the wire at the Police Court this morning. He cantered out of the paddock to a charge of suspicion, in failing to pay his board at the Harris House and his carriage bill to Mr. Leadingham. Mr. Campbell Carrington states that a man of Raymond's nerve is liable to win a fortune. He was trying to induce the lawyer to defend him and take his note for a good fee, and during the conversation he said "nyther." An Answer to Her Prayer.

A woman in West Tennessee went home A woman in West lennessee went home from church one Sunday, impressed by a moving appeal which her pastor had made in behalf of a minister's widow recently left in want with six children. What could she give to relieve this case of suffering? She was herself a widow and poor. She thought intensely over the matter, and that slight she prayed over it, but no way of raising the money occurred to her. The next morning when she went out to sweep off her doorstep she noticed that the earth one side had been freshly thrown up, and something glittering lav in the dirt. It was a $5 gold piece.

During the night a rat had taken it into his head to dig a hole under the step, and one result of his labor was the resurrection of that coin. The woman knew that during the war her husband had buried his savings, all in gold coins, under those steps; but he had dug up the money after the war was over, and evidently supposed he had recovered the whole. It seemed that he was mistaken. And now his widow was not slow to follow the hin given her by the burrowing rat. She removed the steps, and after a thorough search succeeded in finding $20. Regarding this money as a direct gift from heaven, she sent it all to the suffering family.

I found the saloon all right and just crooked my elbow, when I heard the locomotive whistle and burried out to chase the train in a helpless sort of way out of the depot. Then I sat down on a trunk and began to swear at that conductor. Within a few minutes a telegram conductor. Within a few minutes a telegram-was received stating that my train had crashed through the Ashtabula bridge. Then I thought I had time to walk slowly back to the saloon and take auother drink. I don't mean to defend the practice of drinking whisky, but I can never be grateful enough that I wanted that particular dram.
